

Certification and Listing Service

Certification

Product certification provides a definitive and specific assurance that your product complies with the appropriate safety standards to allow access to your target markets. This certification gives your customers and regulatory authorities confirmation that your product is acceptable for use in their markets and jurisdictions.

ARL is an ISO/IEC17065 Certification Body accredited by International Accreditation Service (IAF member), Ref. PCA-120.

Listing

Upon completion of a technical investigation to determine compliance to the appropriate safety standard, products are eligible for listing.

ARL maintains a listing of certified products on its website. The list is publically accessible and provides customers and authorities confirmation that your products comply with the appropriate standards.

Labeling

ARL's product certification labels provide evidence on the product that it has been investigated to and has met the required safety standard. Each label has ARL's certification mark and reference information for definitive confirmation. ARL only provides its certification labels to manufacturers with active and current listings and are in good standing regarding factory inspections.

Continuing Compliance

ARL's certification scheme includes continuing follow-up inspections at the manufacturing site. Periodic inspections are conducted for all active listings, verifying that ongoing production complies with the standard in conformance with the product inspection requirements.
